

C A P Í T U L O 4 B

인물과 가족

Personas y Familia

Pronombres, partículas, preguntas clave y vocabulario familiar

1. Zapatos 구두
2. Colegio 학교
3. Uva 포도
4. Pan 빵
5. Manzana 사과
6. Oppa Hermano mayor 오빠
7. Papa 아빠
8. Estudiante 학생
9. Beso 뽀뽀
10. Profesor 선생님

Bonus: nombre coreano 김재희 / 율리엣 / 기예르모 /
인헤보르그 / 이사마르

안녕하세요.

[an niong ja se yo]

저는 김재희예요. / 제 이름은 김재희예요.

Yo(PT) nombre ser / Mi nombre(PT) nombre ser

저는 한국 사람이에요.

Yo(PT) Korea Persona Ser

저는 선생님이에요.

Yo(PT) profesor ser

반갑습니다!

Mucho gusto

Hoy hablamos de vos, de mí y de tu familia

En Sesión 4 aprendiste a conjugar verbos. Hoy sumamos las piezas que arman una frase completa: quién habla y de quién hablás.

Vamos a ver los PRONOMBRES, cómo se combinan con las PARTÍCULAS 은/는·이/가·을/를, cómo preguntar "¿qué es esto?" y "¿quién es?", el vocabulario de FAMILIA y la lógica de 네/아니요.

Objetivo: que al final de la sesión puedas presentar a tu familia y responder preguntas básicas de sí/no en coreano.

Pronombres personales

나

Yo (informal)

저

Yo (formal)

너

Tú

당신

Usted

그

Él

그녀

Ella

우리

Nosotros

그들

Ellos

저는 재희입니다
나는 재희야

Pronombres + partículas 조사 (은/는, 이/가, 을/를)

나

나는 · 내가* · 나를

저

저는 · 제가* · 저를

너

너는 · 네가* · 너를

당신

당신은 · 당신이 · 당신을

그

그는 · 그가 · 그를

그녀

그녀는 · 그녀가 · 그녀를

우리

우리는 · 우리가 · 우리를

그들

그들은 · 그들이 · 그들을

저는 재희예요
누가 재희예요?
제가 재희예요

이게 뭐예요? · ¿Qué es esto?

이거 es la forma hablada de 이것 (esto). Con la partícula 이/가 se contrae: 이것이 → 이게.

Ejemplos:

- 이게 뭐예요? → ¿Qué es esto?
- 그거는 사과예요. → Eso es una manzana.

- 이거 = cerca de mí
- 그거 = cerca de vos

Los 3 niveles de distancia:

이(cerca de mí) · 그(cerca de vos) · 저(lejos de los dos) — 저거 = eso de allá.

이
그 저

이게 뭐예요?

i-ge mwo-ye-yo

(¿qué es esto?)

이게 / 이거 / 이것이 = esto, este, esta
(cerca a ti)

저게 / 저거 / 저것이 = eso, ese, esa
(cerca la otra persona)

그게 / 그거 / 그것이 = aquel, aquellos, aquellas
(Por ahí, Por allá)

문법 08

이거는, 그거는, 저거는
N이에요/예요

이거는 뭐예요?

Esto(PT) Que V(ser)

그거는 사과예요

Eso(PT) Manzana V(ser)

미소: 이거는 뭐예요?

영준: 그거는 사과예요.

미소

영준

미소: 이거는 뭐예요?

영준: 그거는 사과예요.

미소

영준

미소: 이거는 뭐예요?

영준: 그거는 사과예요.

미소

영준

미소: 이거는 뭐예요?

영준: 그거는 사과예요.

이거는,
그거는, 저거는

N이에요
/예요

이거는

Cerca hablante

그거는

Cerca oyente

저거는

ambos

N(명사) 이에요

/예요

이거는, 그거는
저거는 = 명사

이거는

말하는 사람

듣는 사람

이거는 사과예요.

말하는 사람

듣는 사람

이거는 뭐예요?
저거는
그거는

말하는 사람

듣는 사람

그거는

말하는 사람

듣는 사람

이럴 때는, '그거는'을 사용해요.

말하는 사람

듣는 사람

저거는 사과예요.

말하는 사람

듣는 사람

연습 1

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

딸기

미소: 영준 씨, _____ 뭐예요?

영준: _____ 딸기예요.

미소 씨 바로 옆에 딸기가 있어요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

미소: 영준 씨, _____? 뭐예요?

영준: _____ 딸기예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

미소: 영준 씨, 이거는 뭐예요?

영준: ? 딸기예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

||

미소: 영준 씨, 이거는 뭐예요?

영준: 그거는 딸기예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

가위

영준: 미소 씨, 한국어로 _____ 뭐예요?

미소: _____ 가위예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

영준: 미소 씨, 한국어로 ____?____ 뭐예요?

미소: ____가위예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

영준: 미소 씨, 한국어로 이거는 뭐예요?

미소: 가위예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

영준: 미소 씨, 한국어로 이거는 뭐예요?

미소: 그거는 가위예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

:미소

:영준

피자

영준: 미소 씨, _____ 뭐예요?

미소: _____ 피자예요.

Click to edit Master title style

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

영준: 미소 씨, _____ ? 뭐예요?

미소: _____ 피자예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

?

영준: 미소 씨, 저거는 뭐예요?

미소: _____ 피자예요.

Click to edit Master title style

이 (cerca ti)

그 (lejos de ti)

저 (lejos ambos)

것 = cosa

이 + 것 = 이것 esto

그 + 것 = 그것 = eso

저 + 것 = 저것 = aquello

연습 2

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

연필

영준: 미소 씨, 그거는 한국어로 뭐예요?

미소:

그거는 한국어로 뭐예요?

Eso(PT) Coreano(a, con, en) Que Ser

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

영준: 미소 씨, 그거는 한국어로 뭐예요?

미소:

연필

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

영준: 미소 씨, 그거는 한국어로 뭐예요?

미소: 이거는 연필이에요. Esto es un lápiz

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

미소: 저거는 뭐예요?

무지개

영준:

Click to edit Master title style

이거는, 그거는, 저거는

미소: 저거는 뭐예요?

영준: 저거는 무지개예요.

이거는, 그거는, 저거는 N이에요/예요

말하는 사람

이거는 사과예요.

듣는 사람

그거는 사과예요.

저거는
사과예요.

우리 · "Nuestro", no "mi"

Con familia, país, escuela o casa, los coreanos casi siempre usan 우리 (nosotros) en vez de 내/제 (mi) — aunque seas hijo único.

Ejemplos:

- 우리 엄마 (no "내 엄마") = mi mama 우리 아빠 = papa
- 우리 나라 = mi país

- 우리 학교 = mi escuela
- 우리 집 = mi casa

¿Por qué?

Refleja una idea colectiva: tu familia, tu país y tu escuela se sienten compartidos con otros, no solo tuyos.

우리

uri

(nosotros · "our")

가족 · La familia

En coreano, algunas palabras de familia cambian según el GÉNERO de quien habla — algo que el español no tiene.

Hermano/a mayor:

- 형 (hyeong) = hermano mayor — lo dice un HOMBRE
- 오빠 (oppa) = hermano mayor — lo dice una MUJER

- 누나 (nuna) = hermana mayor — lo dice un HOMBRE
- 언니 (eonni) = hermana mayor — lo dice una MUJER

Truco:

동생 (dongsaeng) = hermano/a MENOR — no cambia, sirve para los dos géneros.

가족

ga-jok

(familia)

우리 가족 = nuestra/mi familia

우리 가족 = nuestra/mi familia

Vocabulario de familia (가족)

어머니

madre

엄마

Mamá

아버지

padre

아빠

Papá

형/오빠

Hno. mayor*

누나/언니

Hna. mayor*

동생

Hno/a menor

할머니

Abuela

할아버지

Abuelo

가족

Familia

남자 = hombre

여자 = mujer

남동생 = hermano menor

여동생 = hermana menor

친구 = amigo

남자친구 = pololo

여자친구 = polola

남사친구 = amigo

여사친구 = amiga

누구예요? · ¿Quién es?

누구 (nu-gu) = quién. Se usa con 예요/이에요 para personas — nunca con 뭐예요, que es solo para cosas.

Ejemplos:

- 이 사람은 누구예요? → ¿Quién es esta persona?

Este persona(PT) quien es

이 사람은 이사마르예요

- 저 사람이 선생님이예요. → Aquella persona es el profesor.

- 그 사람은 누구예요? → ¿Quién es esa persona?

- 우리 엄마예요. → Es mi mamá.

Truco:

누구 + 예요 = 누구예요. Pero 누구 + 가 = 누가 (irregular, como ya viste en 이/가).

누구예요?

nu-gu-ye-yo

(¿quién es?)

네 / 아니요 · Acuerdo, no verdad

네 y 아니요 no son "sí" y "no": marcan ACUERDO o DESACUERDO con lo que dijo la otra persona.

Ejemplo clásico:

- 커피 안 좋아해요? → ¿No te gusta el café?
- 네, 안 좋아해요. → No, no me gusta. (acuerdo)
- 아니요, 좋아해요. → Sí, me gusta. (desacuerdo)

네, 맞아요. → Sí, es correcto.

Truco:

¿Estoy de acuerdo con lo que dijo? Sí → 네. No → 아니요. No pienses en positivo/negativo.

좋아해요? = gustar

커피를 좋아해요 = me gusta el café

Cafe(PO) gustar

안 좋아해요

No me gusta cafe

네 / 아니요

ne / a-ni-yo

(acuerdo / desacuerdo)

이, 그, 저

- 이것/이거는/이게 = Esto
- 그것/그거는/그게 = Eso
- 저것/저거는/저게 = Aquello

이게 뭐예요? Que es esto

Esto que ser

- 이게 연필이에요 = Esto es un lápiz

Esto lapiz ser

저게 뭐예요? = Que es aquello?

Aquello que ser

저게 시계예요 = Aquello es un reloj

Aquello reloj ser

Vocabulario

- 선생님 = Profesor

[Sun Seng Nim]

- 책상 = Escritorio

[chek sang]

- 의자 = Silla

[eui ja]

- 칠판 = pizarra

[chil pan]

- 시계 = Reloj

[si ge]

- 지우개 = goma de borrador

[ji wu ge]

- 책 = libro

[chek]

- 공책 = cuaderno

[gong chek]

- 연필 = lapiz

[yion pil]

Vocabulario

- 선생님 = Profesor

[Sun Seng Nim]

- 책상 = Escritorio

[chek sang]

- 의자 = Silla

[eui ja]

- 칠판 = pizarra

[chil pan]

- 시계 = Reloj

[si ge]

- 지우개 = goma de borrador

[ji wu ge]

- 책 = libro

[chek]

- 공책 = cuaderno

[gong chek]

- 연필 = lapiz

[yion pil]

Repaso

- 뭐예요?
- 무엇 -> 뭐 [Mo]= Que (todo)
- 무엇을 -> 뭐를 -> 뭘 [Mol] = Que (acción)

1) 왈도는 선생님이예요 = Waldo es profesor

Waldo(partícula tema)

2) 누가 선생님이예요? = Quien es el profesor?

왈도가 선생님이예요 = Waldo es profesor

Waldo(partícula tema)

3. 을/를 (acción)

책을 읽어요

Libro P.O leer

S (P.O) Verbo

밥을 먹어요

Partícula objeto : Indicador indirecto del verbo

El acción del verbo sobre el objeto

밥을 먹어요

Objeto P.O Verbo

Repaso

- '하다' = hacer

허다+-ㅊ니다 : 합니다 [합니다 / ham ni da] = 존댓말 (Respeto a mayores)

하다->해요 = 높임말(hablar cordialmente)

하다->해 = 반말 (informal)

Verbo + -ㄹ 거예요 = Futuro

‘공부하다’ + -ㄹ 거예요

공부할 거예요= Estudiar

을 거예요

를 거예요

1) 공부해요 = Estudiar

공부 + 해요

Estudio + Hacer

2) 공부를 해요 = Estudiar

Repaso

‘하다’ + 요 = presente

~요 = cordialmente en presente

공부해요 = estudio, estudias, estudia, estudian, estudiamos

‘하다’ + -했어요 = pasado

했어요 -> [했서요]

공부했어요

았어요

었어요

1) 공부해요 = Estudiar

공부 + 해요

Estudio + Hacer

2) 공부를 해요 = Estudiar

네 / 아니요

- En coreano, 네 significa "Sí" [ne] y 아니요 significa "No" [aniyo]
- 네. [ne] = Sí.
- 아니요. [aniyo] = No
- Pero en coreano, cuando la gente dice "네", no es lo mismo que decir "Sí". en español. Lo mismo ocurre con "아니요" también. Esto se debe a que el coreano "네" expresa su "acuerdo" con lo que dijo la otra persona. Y "아니요" expresa su "desacuerdo" o "negación" a lo que dijo la otra persona

- 사과를 좋아해요?

Manzana(PO) gustar

네, 사과를 좋아해요

Si, manzana(PO) gustar

아니요, 사과를 안 좋아해요

No, manza(PO) no me gusta

네/아니요

- 사과를 안 좋아해요? No te gusta la manzana?
- 네, 안 좋아해요. Si, no me gusta
- 아니요, 좋아해요. No, me gusta
- Por ejemplo, 좋아해요 = gustar 안 좋아해요 = no gustar
si alguien te pregunta “No te gusta el café?”
(커피 안 좋아해요? [keo-pi an yo-a-je-io?])
아니요, 커피 좋아해요. Si, me gusta el cafe

네 / 아니요

- 네. [ne] = Eso es correcto. / Estoy de acuerdo. / Suena bien. / Lo que dijiste es correcto.
-
- 아니요. [aniyo] = Eso no es correcto. / No estoy de acuerdo. / Lo que dijiste no es correcto.
- Por lo tanto, cuando pregunte "¿No le gusta el café?" en coreano, si a la persona que responde no le gusta café, él / ella dirá "No" en español pero "네" en coreano. Y si a la persona le gusta el café, él / ella dirá "Sí". pero "아니요" en coreano.
- 커피 좋아해요? [keo-pi yo-a-je-io?] = ¿Te gusta el café?
- 네. 좋아해요. [ne . yo-a-je-io] = Sí, me gusta el café.

좋아해요 [조아해요]= gustar / 안 좋아해요 (no)

* ㅎ mudo de 받침

- 커피 좋아해요? [keo-pi yo-a-je-io?] = ¿Te gusta el café?
- 아니요. 안 좋아해요. [aniyo. an yo-a-je-io] = No, no me gusta el café
- 커피 안 좋아해요? [keo-pi an yo-a-je-yo?] = ¿No te gusta el café?
- 아니요. 좋아해요. [aniyo. uo-a-je-io] = Sí, me gusta el café.
- 커피 안 좋아해요? [keo-pi an yo-a-je-io?] = ¿No te gusta el café?
- 네. 안 좋아해요. [ne. an yo-a-je-io] = No, no me gusta el café.

Conversación 네

- A: ¿Sabes qué?
Compré este libro
ayer...
- B: 네. [ne]
- A: y me gusto mucho.
- B: 네.
- A: Pero es un poco
caro.
- B: 네.

A: ¿Sabes cuánto fue?

B: ¿Cuánto fue?

A: ¡Fueron 100 dólares!

B: 네? [¿ne?]

A: Entonces pagué el dinero con mi tarjeta de crédito.

B: 네 ..

Taegeukgi: The National Flag of Korea

태극기를 휘날리며

The term taegeuk literally means the “state of chaos that existed before the creation of the sky and earth.” In this regard, while the red portion of the taegeuk symbol signifies yang, the blue section is meant to denote yin. This yin and yang can in turn be expressed as the moon and sun, or earth and heaven. Taegeuk thus has been taken to mean a complete circle in which yin and yang encounter one another, or an unlimited universe. Taegeuk is therefore a different term for the universe.

To this end, taegeuk designs were first found in conjunction with ruins and remains from the 7th century. One can find many taegeuk designs in pagodas, roof tiles, knives, sculptures, gates, and fans. This highly symbolical design was subsequently reborn as the taegukgi during the modern era. In 1876 King Gojong (reign 1864 - 1907) of Joseon Dynasty (1392 - 1910) personally designed a taegukgi (Korean national flag) which prominently featured the taegeuk. This flag was first officially used to represent Korea in 1882 when a royal envoy visiting Japan hung it from the roof of the building where his delegation was staying.

Originally known as the ‘Joseon gukgi (flag of Joseon)’, the Korean flag was first referred to as the taegeukgi in the March 1st, 1919 Declaration of Korean Independence signed by 33 national representatives during the Japanese colonial era. The people who subsequently poured out onto the streets to participate in the spontaneous independence movement did so while holding such taegeukgi in their hands. In 1949, the newly established Korean government set clear norms in terms of the size and form which the taegeukgi was to have, standards which continue to apply to this day.

The 2002 Korea-Japan World Cup had the effect of forever altering Koreans’ perception of the taegeukgi. During this magical period, the taegeukgi came to be seen as more than an object that should be saluted on national holidays and special occasions. Adorned on people’s faces, t-shirts, towels and cloaks, it effectively became one of the items people used to express their support for the national side. The taegeukgi has thus become perceived as a more intimate part of the people’s daily lives.

무궁화

Mugunghwa: The national flower of Korea

The bellowing and unassuming Mugunghwa (rose of Sharon) is the national flower of Korea. While it boasts neither an extravagant appearance nor strong aroma, this plain-looking flower is embedded with a never-ending sense of vitality that meshes seamlessly with the unswerving Korean national character. The mugunghwa embodies such notions as devotion, gentleness, and endurance.

The mugunghwa has been with Koreans since time long past. In a record of the history of Gojoseon (2333 BC - 108 BC) known as the Handangoki, one encounters a flower called the hwanhwa. Here, this hwanhwa can be understood to denote none other than the mugunghwa, which has also been referred to at other times as the mokkeun or geunhwa.

A diplomatic document sent from Silla Kingdom (57 BC - 935 AD) to China's Tang dynasty contained a reference to Silla as the land of the scent of Geunhwa (or country of mugunghwa). Moreover, the ancient Chinese geographic collection Shanhaijing (Classic of the Mountains and Seas) and the Gujinzhu (encyclopedia) compiled during the Qin (221 BC - 206 AD) dynasty include references to Korea as the land of ample mugunghwa.

The actual term mugunghwa was first employed during the Goryeo Dynasty (918 - 1392). More to the point, the first reference to mugunghwa appears in the Dongguk isanggukjip (Collected Works of Minister Yi of Korea) written by the Goryeo Dynasty era scribe Yi Gyu-bo (1168 - 1241). During the Goryeo Dynasty and Joseon Dynasty eras (1392 - 1910), it was common practice for kings to reward those who successfully passed the civil service examinations (gwageo) with paper-made mugunghwa.

The mugunghwa first became the national flower of Korea during the Japanese colonial era (1910 - 1945) when it was overwhelmingly selected by the people as the floral symbol of their nation. Koreans countered colonial Japan's racial assimilation policy by planting mugunghwa nationwide as a sign of their uninterrupted dreams of independence for Korea. Therefore, the mugunghwa which regularly returns a day after seemingly having faded away to gloriously expose its existence, became a symbol of the unbridled and unbreakable spirit of the Korean nation. In modern times, the mugunghwa has become a signifier to demonstrate the identity of Koreans.

Dokdo: The Spiritual Island

Dokdo is a small volcanic island located at the easternmost end of the Korean landmass. Dokdo, which spouted out of the East Sea some 4.6 million years ago, is the oldest of Korea's volcanic islands. While Dokdo was originally one island, erosion and inclement weather has over the years resulted in it becoming divided into Eastern and Western islands. While Eastern island (dongdo) stands 88 meters tall, Western island (seodo) rises 174 meters above the sea. Although it is a small island with an area of only 0.186 km², Dokdo represents much more than a simple island for Koreans. Dokdo constitutes nothing less than the pride of Koreans.

Japan has often asserted that it has territorial sovereignty over Dokdo. However, nothing could be further from the truth. Japan illegally occupied Dokdo during the so-called colonial era (1910 - 1945) in which it usurped the sovereignty of Korea. In this regard, not only Korean historical records and atlases but several Japanese ones as well, have clearly included Dokdo as part of Korea's territory. For instance, the record of ancient Korean history known as the Samguk sagi, Chronicles of the Three Kingdoms, states that Dokdo first became a part of the Korean territory during the reign of King Jijeung of Silla Kingdom (512). At that time, an independent kingdom called Usanguk existed in the East Sea.

This Usanguk was composed of the island currently known as Ulleungdo and Dokdo. Usanguk was subsequently occupied and integrated into Silla Kingdom during the reign of King Jijeung. Meanwhile, the Joseon wangjosillok (Annals of Joseon Dynasty) - 472 years of historical records compiled from 1392 to 1863- also contains many records pertaining to Dokdo. Moreover, the Sinjeung dongguk yeoji seungnam (Revised and Augmented Gazetteer of Korea), a book which introduced the geography of Joseon compiled in 1531, also clearly reveals that Dokdo belongs to Korea. Finally, the ancient Japanese document, the Onshu shicho goki (Records on Observations in Oki Province) (compiled in 1667), also plainly places Dokdo within the boundaries of Korea.

The marine area around Dokdo has long been known as a golden fishing area. This is because its location as the meeting point between the cold currents that emanate from the north and the warm currents flowing from the south make it a natural home for copious amounts of plankton. There are currently a few civilians, marine guards, and the officer of lighthouse residing on Dokdo.

Dokdo Island in the East Sea. Dokdo is at the East most end of the Korean Peninsula and became Korean territory since 512.

Hanwu: Friend of One's Lifetime

Hanwu is the term used to refer to indigenous Korean cows. Prior to the advent of industrialization, Koreans' livelihoods were intricately related to that of cows. For them, cows were more than a mere form of livestock; they were in fact nothing less than a member of the family. The hanwu represented an important source of labor, provided a means of transportation, and took on many of the attributes of an emergency fund that could be tapped into when families fell on hard times. In olden days, a family that possessed many cows was regarded as a 'rich family'. The following poem about a cow is taken from the Korean textbook for third graders in elementary school.

A cow always eats slowly no matter how hungry it is
A cow always walks slowly even when it rains
A cow is slow to smile after a glorious event has emerged
A cow is slow to moan after a sad event has emerged Cows may be slow, but it is this slowness that constitutes their genuine strength. Cows boast a warm and modest personality and are very patient animals. It is these very characteristics that make cows look slow. As can be seen from the poem, Koreans developed a strong understanding of cows' lives. The close proximity between man and cow in the past helped Koreans to forge a profound comprehension of the cow's happiness and sadness.

In olden days, Koreans regularly prepared meals consisting of beef, pork, or chicken whenever they had a party. Those parties that featured food made of beef were widely regarded as the best ones. Even after it has died, a cow continues to help its owner by leaving behind thick and tough leather that people can use to make clothes, bags, shoes, and even drums.

Bulgogi and Galbi can be regarded as representative Korean beef-based dishes. Bulgogi is a dish that consists of sliced beef that is both marinated and grilled. Meanwhile, Galbi guyi is a dish made of marinated and grilled 6 - 7cm long beef ribs, and Galbijjim is a dish created by marinating the beef ribs and then letting them boil in water for a long period of time. In addition, Galbitang is a soup made with beef ribs, radish, thick green onions, garlic, and ginger that is boiled for a long period of time. Beef ribs help restore the spleen and stomach's functions, stop vomiting and diarrhea, and reduce edema. These are also known to help strengthen muscle and bone texture.

Jindotgae: Korea's Indigenous Dog

진돗개

Jindo is an island located in the southwest of the Korean peninsula. Jindo is renowned as an artistic island rich in traditional music, dance, and art. However, Jindo's main claim to fame is as the home of the indigenous Korean dog known as the 'Jindotgae dog'. The ancestry of the Jindotgae dog can be traced back to the Stone Age. Indigenous to Korea, the Jindotgae dog was able to maintain its bloodline and wild nature amidst the unique island environment. The Korean government officially registered the Jindotgae dog as a Korean cultural property and designated it as Korean Natural Monument No. 53 in 1962. The Jindotgae dog possesses a great character. It is especially loyal, obedient, brave and endowed with a great sense of smell; all qualities perceived as being very useful for hunting. In this regard, Koreans have regarded the Jindotgae dog as a naturally-gifted hunting dog. The Jindotgae dog possesses a strong loyalty toward its owner. Once it has adopted a person as its owner, it will never betray him or her. These traits are linked to the breed's mysterious basic instinct to always attempt to return home. In fact, if one were to bring a Jindotgae dog some 300km away, over mountains and sea, it would always find a way to come back to its owner, whether it be by jumping aboard a passenger ship or swimming back to shore. One can only imagine how smart the Jindotgae dog is. In addition, the Jindotgae dog never eats food scraps without having permission from its owner. Although its loyalty toward its owner is strong, it remains very aggressive toward others. It never allows its guard to drop for even a moment. Furthermore, it is very clean and never relieves itself anywhere outside of its designated area.

The Jindotgae dog is characterized by its excellent sense of smell, endurance, and bravery. In other words, it possesses the basic qualities for hunting. The Jindotgae dog has reached such a degree of fame around the world that it has now been registered with England's Kennel Club (KC) and France's Federation Cynologique Internationale (FCI). In this regard, the state has gone to great lengths to preserve the Jindotgae dog's bloodline.

Cheukwugi: World's First Rain Gauge

Floods and drought are natural disasters which can difficultly be overcome based on human labor alone. With this in mind, Koreans began from early onwards to attempt to develop scientific methods to help them better cope with meteorological phenomena. In this regard, the most important task at that time was that of identifying the exact amount of rainfall. It was against this backdrop that the Cheukwugi (1441) was invented.

Cheukwugi is a gauge that measures the amount of rain which has fallen. The term Cheukwugi first appeared in the Sejongillok, or annals of the reign of the Joseon dynasty's King Sejong (r. 1418 - 1450). These annals tell how rainfall was precisely measured using a juchoek (rainfall gauge) once the rain had stopped, and the dates on which the rain started and stopped were thereafter recorded.

The Cheukwugi used during this period consisted of an iron-made cylinder that stood 32cm tall and spanned 15cm in diameter. The length of the juchoek was about 21cm. It was during this period that the measurement of rainfall using a Cheukwugi began to be implemented nationwide, and that the measured rainfall was statistically estimated. Locally compiled statistics were regularly reported to the central government, and the total rainfall nationwide was then precisely recorded and preserved. No other country besides Korea possessed the ability to scientifically measure rainfall during the 1400s. In fact, rainfall was only first scientifically measured in Italy in 1639, 1658 in France and 1677 in England. Invented well before Galileo's thermometer and Torricelli's barometer, the Cheukwugi thus represents the world's first rain gauge. The remains of a Cheukwugi manufactured during late Joseon Dynasty have been designated as National Treasure No. 561 and housed by the Korea Meteorological Administration.

네, 빵이에요

- 이게 빵이에요?
- 네, 빵이에요
- 이게 주스예요?
- 아니요, 우유예요

Lo que aprendiste hoy

- ✓ Pronombres personales (나/저, 너, 당신, 그, 그녀, 우리, 그들)
- ✓ Pronombres + partículas 은/는·이/가·을/를
- ✓ 이게 뭐예요? y 누구예요?
- ✓ 우리 en vez de "mi" con familia/país/escuela
- ✓ Vocabulario de familia (가족) y términos según género
- ✓ 네/아니요 = acuerdo, no verdad

T A R E A

Grabá un audio de 1 minuto presentando a tu familia con 우리 (우리 엄마, 우리 아빠, etc). Subir al Discord #tarea-sesion-4b.

화이팅!

Nos vemos en la próxima sesión

ACADEMIA
seul

ACADEMIA SEÚL · 김재희